

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. DIRECTIONS FOR USING THIS BOOK.1ST.

Learn perfectly, from a native teacher, the eight tones as given in the exercise on page 3.

2ND.

Learn from pages 5 and 6 the Chinese sounds represented by the letters used in Romanizing them.

3RD.

Learn how to pronounce correctly words with and without the aspirate, and with and without the nasal, using the exercises on page 7.

4TH.

Learn to count accurately from pages 9 and 10.

5TH.

Learn the lessons in their order, completely mastering each before beginning the next one. Be able to write the Chinese characters from memory, to translate the English into Chinese, and the Chinese into English, and look for fuller definitions of the same words in Williams' Dictionary.

6TH.

Exercise the ear more than the eye in learning the language.

TONES.

Every Chinese word has a tone, inseparable from its pronunciation. In the Tŕe Ciu dialect there are eight tones, which can be acquired only from a living teacher. Many Chinese teachers know no names for the tones; and different teachers place them in different orders. The following order is perhaps most usual.

Chinese Name.		Tonal Marks.
上平	cīe ⁿ phē ⁿ ,	upper even.	ㄉ
上上	cīe ⁿ sīang,	upper high.	ㄊ
上去	cīe ⁿ khà,	upper going.	ㄋ
上入	cīe ⁿ jīp,	upper entering.	ㄌ
下平	ě phē ⁿ ,	lower even.	ㄍ
下上	ě sīang,	lower high.	ㄎ
下去	ě khà,	lower going.	ㄏ
下入	ě jīp,	lower entering.	ㄏ

These names do not express the relative sounds of the tones, but appear to be purely arbitrary. Words in the entering tones always end in the sound of h, k, p, or t. In speaking, the tone of a word is greatly modified by its relation to other words in the sentence, and all are obscure except that of the most emphatic word, which has its tone fully enunciated. The same syllable is seldom found in all the eight tones.

ROMAN LETTERS.

The sounds of Chinese words cannot be exactly represented by Roman letters, used as in English. In this book the Roman letter whose sound in English approximates the Chinese sound, is taken as the symbol of that sound, and the exact pronunciation must be acquired from the Chinese themselves.

The vowels when followed by consonants are much shortened, especially when followed by h, k, t and p.

The aspirate does not coalesce with a consonant preceding it, but is sounded independently.

The sounds of p, k and t when not followed by the aspirate are so repressed as to resemble those of b, g and d.

Of the consonants all occur as initials, but only h, k, m, n, ng, p and t as finals.

ⁿ at the end of a word indicates that the vowels of the word are sounded nasally.

In all cases the pronunciation of the Chinese word should be learned through the ear and from a native teacher, and the Romanized words should be relied upon only as a help to the memory in learning.

The pronunciation of the same word varies greatly in the different districts. That followed in these lessons is that of the Departmental City.

CHINESE LETTERS.

As the spoken and written languages are unlike, a colloquial sentence written in the characters which would represent its sounds, would not to a Chinese scholar correctly express its meaning. Many colloquial words have no written character. In such case a character of similar signification, with a star following it, has been used in this book.

- 1 When it lightens in summer, cut hemp and drape your raincloak. Do you yawn from sleepiness?
- 2 To sneeze. You let him be chilly till he is sneezing.
- 3 The blind have those who can see to lead them.
- 4 To the rich their money; to the leprous, their life.
- 5 This medicine cures the plague.
- 6 A cold is a slight ailment; the bilious habit is a more serious one which must first be cured.
- 7 Drank until he hiccoughed.
- 8 For belching, if it is slight take a sedative; if serious you must take a tonic.
- 9 The leper denies it till he is carius; the consumptive till he is dead.
- 10 What are you sighing about?
- 11 If you gamble and do not lose, it is the neatest work; if you steal and are not killed, it is the best business.
- 12 You need not groan; other people's blind eyes, compared with your bright and whole blind eyes, are worse to look at. Now and then.
- 13 How long have you been blind?

- 1 A purple color.
- 2 Wine. A bag to hold quails.
- 3 A camel's bone. This is figurative language. When the ignorant take a commonplace thing and consider it a prize, the knowing see that it is a useless article, and they figuratively call the a thing camel's bone.
- 4 The trigger. A natural path. Side sails. Doves' eggs. Foxes' pelts. The betel nut. Olive vinegar. The seeds of the pomegranate. Peacock feather.
- 5 When a poor man dresses up and pretends to be rich, if people wish to laugh at him they say these two lines; "the holds a quail in his hand, and betel nut in his mouth". If one is to carry around a quail it should be the male bird, which is costly. The female bird is inexpensive; and wealthy men occasionally chew betel. Holding an olive in his mouth.
- 6 We people here occasionally dress in that way.
